It also explains the comparison of broker's performance available in market with Indiabulls and As compare to Indiabulls where the locality of Dehradun are interested to invest their saving.

Keywords: Demat account, online trading account, Dematerialization, Indiabulls, Services by brokers.

I. INTRODUCTION

DEMAT ACCOUNT or "Dematerialised" account is quoted the online transactions made by an investor in electronic statements. For the purpose of purchasing and selling of the shares and securities every shareholders will have a Dematerialised account. To access the demat account we need to register ourselves with a depository participant (DP), an agent of depositories.

Dematerialised is a process of converting the physical form of shares into electronic form. Through the demat account the transaction can be easily done. There are various depository participants available in the market which helps you to open demat account. It also provides many facilities to the shareholders. During online trading shares can easily be sold and purchased by the investor. It also contains the information of transactions, holding of shares and securities, government securities, exchange traded funds, bonds and mutual funds in one place.

Need for a Demat account

As per the SEBI, it is compulsory to settle all the transactions of online trading with Demat account. All the companies listed in the stock market should trade in demat form with effect from 2 January 2002. If an investor wants to invest in the stock market should connect with the depositories i. e NSDL & CDSL, it would require a demat opened with the DP of choice to hold shares in dematerialized form and to undertake scrip less trading.

II. LITERATURE REVIEW

Olekar & Talwar (2013) in their research paper Online trading & DEMAT account in India. Some issues observed that the banks normally apply or levy a lower service charges compared to other depository participants available in the market. He also found that when the numbers of users are doing more transactions, the speed of transactions is affected.

Inderbir Kaur (2013), stated in his paper on "Investors Preference between Demat & Remat and awareness regarding depository and its various laws". The depository act defines a depository as a company formed and registered under the companies act 1956, the main function of a depository is to dematerialize securities of an individual and show their transactions in book entry form. The objective of the study is to know the reasons for investors preference between remat and demat and to know the satisfaction level of depository participants available in the market. In this quantitative technique, percentage method has been used. Overall the depository is convenient and safer and majority of people are shifting towards dematerialization as compared to the rematerialisation.
